A third generation farmer, Mike Naylor has been using organic farming practices since 1984 and is currently registered organic. He built a reputation growing peaches and nectarines of the highest quality and selling them all over the country. “My joy is selling ripe fruit,” said Naylor. Now Mike and his wife, Nori, invite people to come to their farm and pick the fruit themselves. “You can’t get any fresher than that,” Nori says.

Mike and Nori also started a farm stay in 2010 where guests can stay with them and learn about organic farming. The Naylor family downsized to the home 40 acres in 2015. They are leasing 30 acres to Fruit Fairy Farms and maintaining the 2.5 acres surrounding their house for their U-pick sales and fruit stand.

“An organic farm is a part of nature, not separate from it. That is our philosophy,” Mike says.
